

fmin analyzes data from previous points from MongoDB and creates new points-to-be-tested

MongoDB stores data on previous points and points that are to be tested

Workers read points to-be-done from the DB, execute them and write the results back to the DB